- 1 Platelets are responsible for blood clotting, which helps stop bleeding from a cut or other trauma to the circulatory system.
- 2 Platelets must be transfused within 5 days of donation, making them the most perishable blood component.
- 3 Platelets are often used in large quantities and over extended periods of time by leukemia, cancer and bone marrow transplant patients, as well as following surgery to help stop bleeding.
- 4 MAX platelet donations with high cell counts can be split into doubles or triples, providing the same amount of platelets that would require up to 30 whole blood donors.
- 5 Because the body replenishes platelets very quickly, blood donors can give platelets as often as every 15 days, up to 24 times per year. Platelets are most often needed from donors with blood types A+, B+ and O+.

WBC DONATION

White blood cell (WBC) donation is a critical component of blood donation, specifically targeting the collection of leukocytes (white blood cells). WBCs play an essential role in the immune system, helping to fight infections and diseases. WBCs are crucial for patients with weakened immune systems, such as those undergoing chemotherapy, bone marrow transplants, or suffering from severe infections.

நன்கொடையாளர்களிடமிருந்து வரும் கிரானுலோசைட்டுகள் கீமோதெரபி, மாற்று அறுவை சிகிச்சை மற்றும் பிற சிகிச்சைக்குப் பிறகு தொற்றுநோயைக் கட்டுப்படுத்த முக்கியமானதாக இருக்கும். மருத்துவ மைய மருத்துவர்கள் உயிருக்கு ஆபத்தான நோய்த்தொற்றுடன் அல்லது கடுமையாக பலவீனமான நோயெதிர்ப்பு அமைப்புகளைக் கொண்ட நோயாளிகளுக்கு சிகிச்சையளிக்க நன்கொடை அளிக்கப்பட்ட கிரானுலோசைட்டுகளை நம்பியுள்ளனர்.

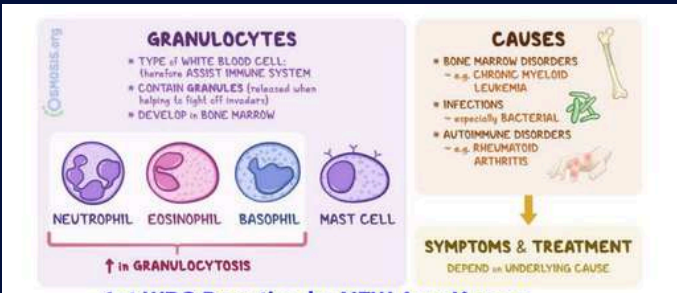

Granulocytes from donors can be critical to control infections after chemotherapy, transplantation and other treatment. Clinical center physicians rely on donated granulocytes to treat patients with life-threatening infections or severely impaired immune systems

BOMBAY BLOOD GROUP

The Bombay blood group, also known as HH blood type, is one of the rarest blood types in the world. Its scarcity means that patients requiring this blood type in emergency situations often face significant challenges. Platelet Club plays a crucial role in bridging this gap by organizing and facilitating the donation and transportation of the Bombay blood group across Tamil Nadu and India.

Glad to share a good news with you. We have no words to express our gratitude for your kindness and generosity. You made us believe that, nothing in this world is impossible if you have the right people standing by your side. Our daughter(DASARI CHARVIKA) underwent a successful bone marrow transplant and has been recovering really well. Her body has accepted the stem cells well and all her body parameters are within the normal range. She faces no issues at present, however, she's still on precautionary medication. Our joy has no bounds when we see our daughter live her life normally like other kids again 😊

Thank you for restoring our hope in humanity! 🙏🙏🙏
